Does CBC need an Alma Mater? If the school were but a factory and the students were robots then I would say no. But it isn't and we aren't.

An Alma Mater is the leading symbol of a school's integrity and maturity. In an Alma Mater the school is identified as a bulwark against ignorance, an institution where learning, not just textbooks; but where values such as honesty, trust, loyalty and honor are also nurtured. An Alma Mater represents the school's soul, its eternal truth and continuity through the years. It represents tradition, and the warm spot in the heart of anyone who has attended the school. An Alma Mater represents the school's maternal love for its students, and its wonderfully grouchy idealistic staff.

When the Alma Mater is sung or played, it is not hard to remember loves, hates, fears, challenges, the class Homecoming Queen, or the traditions at CBC. It represents the steady solemn march of the school toward excellence; the continuity from one class to the next, of sacred principals and traditions.

With these thoughts in mind, I feel that it is time that we open a course for our emotions and ideals to travel from one class to the next. I think we should open the vault and give traditions their freedom to grow. We should be allowed to share our memories and spiritual attachment to this institution which is giving us so much with those yet to attend CBC.

Dear Editor:

I don't intend to monopolize this column as my personal soap box; but I find it expedient to answer the insinuations made in this newspaper last week, as to my feelings on the parking problem.

I couldn't help but become slightly amused when I read

Jim Rider's letter. It seems like he was guilty of exactly what he was accusing me of—expressing an opinion.

It may be a person's choice to attempt to take some food from the cafeteria without paying for it, but he should be willing to accept the consequence in the event he is caught.

I THINK it would be well for people to spend a little time obeying the rules, rather than bed" from them.

Yes, Jim, someone got robbed, but are we sure who it was? Was it the people who didn't bother to consider the rules and reasons? Or was it the administration who was robbed of the respect of the students?

This happens to be my opinion. I respect anyone's right to disagree with it, but it is how I feel!

IT IS ALSO my opinion that waiting until they are caught, to merely claim they are unfair.

I am not challenging a person's right to complain about any of the rules, which have been made for our benefit. As I leave myself open for criticism, I feel it is my right to voice my opinion as well.

Let's not lose sight of the fact that there is a principal involved here that far outweighs the $10.50 that some students feel the ASB has "rob-

Dear Ed,

We were very pleased with the response to the straw ballot held Friday. I would like to express my appreciation to the college for allowing us to hold the election, to the County Auditor for the use of the voting machines, to Mr. Oberst and the Political Science Department for officiating, and especially to all the students who worked at the polls.

The only unfortunate occurrence during the week preceding the voting was the removal and defacing of signs and posters of both parties. This is something that one doesn't expect to happen in a situation. I only hope people responsible for themselves in the polls.

The number of votes and, although we have had more people educated enough to vote, was a good turnout.

It will be interesting to see how our results compare to the actual election results.

Our thanks are to all those who participated.

Dear Ed,

Hawks Tilt Black Knights Here, 22-6

The Grand Wagon

CBC Hawks are still in the running for the Washington JC Conference title, thanks to Everett's victory over the unbeaten Gray's Chokers last week. The Hawks, who are still in the running, were defeated by a 20-13, which gave them an all-season status of only one more game. Yakima and CBC are tied for first place with 3-1 records and both have two games left in their season. Next week, the Hawks will be at Everett and will host Gray's next weekend in our home game. The last two games will be important, not only because of the stakes, but also because Gaskins will probably set the record for a two-season rushing yardage. Last week's game with Everett, Gaskins brought the Hawks within 38 yards of the record of 1261 yards. Bud Hare. Gaskins is well way behind his season average and still has the record easily.

More Local Art Needed

BY DALE LONG

While in Colorado this past summer, I was able to attend the annual Alpine Artists Holiday exhibit in Ouray, Colorado. This is an impressive and provocative exhibit that draws in artists from all over Colorado as well as its neighboring states. Probably because of the lack of such exhibits in the United States, artists come from as far away as Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri to display their works and trade ideas. Prize money is not the incentive in this exhibit. The prizes that are awarded are modest and few. What attracts the artists? A chance seldom found in the West—an opportunity to exhibit to the open public. In our area, all of the other art forms are extremely active and well received. Each town in our area has its community theatres and symphonies which provide a well balanced program for the area residents. It is indeed a shame that the graphic arts have no chance to appeal to the public through exhibits and showings. True, there are exhibits available, but they are usually connected with clubs or societies and are not generally open to the public or publicized. The few exceptions are the exhibits at the Richland Players or at the Walla Walla Little Theatre, when these groups present their plays. There are no privately owned galleries in the Tri-Cities, and only one in Walla Walla—The Picturehouse Gallery on Park Street. This is the only chance local artists have to exhibit.

You might ask, "But does this area have any worthwhile artists?" The answer is yes! To name only a few acquainted to this writer, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Koch, of Kennewick; Betty Feves of Pendleton; John Ford, Ruth Fluno, Richard Rasmussen, and Willeta Schremp, all of Walla Walla. Some are nationally known, some have paintings and sculptures in the National Gallery, but how many are known in their own area? Those who have been recognized are better known on the coast than in their own area.

What is needed here is a festival exhibit of the type that has been instituted in Ouray, Colorado. This festival has grown from humble beginnings

The Columbia Basin Hawks remained in the running for the Washington JC Conference title, by putting down Wenatchee JC 22-6 at Brown Memorial Stadium last Saturday.

The Black Knights started off with a frightening 93 yard TD run on the opening kickoff, to give themselves a quick six point edge that lasted until late in the second period.

With about six minutes left in the first half, Wally Gaskins pushed his way into the end zone from one yard out after a 17 yard Lister to Bowerman pass put the Hawks in scoring position. Specialist Cliff Smith added the PAT, and at last CBC was ahead 7-6.

JERRY BAILEY gained 12 yards on the ground for the Hawks to begin the second TD drive in the same quarter.

A few plays later, he beat two Wenatchee defenders to a pass from Tony Lister that netted 39 yards, and again the Hawks found themselves in scoring position on the Wenatchee 15 yard line.

Lister flipped the ball to Dan Bowerman in the end zone on the next play; and Smith brought the first half scoring to a close, with the conversion making it 14-6.

AFTER A scoreless third period, the Hawks reached the Knights' one yard line only to be unable to squeeze over for the TD.

All was not a total loss, however, because the Wenatchee quarterback fumbled two plays later and elected to give CBC the safety instead of the TD, as he recovered in his own end zone.

A 30 yard punt return by Lister started the ball rolling for the Hawks again. The pass continued to be the key to success as Lister hit Gartha Morgan for the final points in the game.

of the extreamest on campus. I for one would like to hear Jim Green speak on why he would like to join the John Birch Society, and how he feels he could infiltrate the campus news. After the hypocrites have tared and feathered him we should encourage the American Nazi party to meet in the lounge and they could really have fun. To climax this week of purification by fire they should perge all of the members of the loosing political party.

Dear Editor:

With the accent on school spirit this year, I find that many school organizations, as well as individuals, are being criticized for their lack of participation.

One such organization is the pep band. Among other things, the band has been blamed for not cooperating with the cheerleaders by refusing to "make noise with our horns," not playing during time-outs and between quarters, being unorganized and for not playing during the second half.

As a band member, I resent these accusations. I think the band has more school spirit than any other organization in this school. Not one club has been as faithful in attending games and pep rallies as the band.

WE DO OUR BEST to participate with the cheerleaders in all their yells and chants. As for "making noise with our horns" during the game, I feel that this is not the function of the pep band.

We come to the games to provide pre-game and halftime entertainment. We do not come to use our instruments as noise-makers during the game.

If we did this, we would not only look ridiculous to the audience but the sound of horns wailing throughout the game would be enough to discourage the most avid football fan from attending a game. Most of the band members are here on scholarships. They came to play music and not to provide noise-makers for the games.

The main reason we do not play during time-outs or between quarters is that we really don't have enough time to play anything during these short periods. We do play the fight song after a touchdown, even though we are largely met with silence from the stands.

We have also been criticized for not playing during the second half. As I have said before, our job is to provide pre-game and halftime entertainment. Once the half is over, there's not much chance to play anything.

IF WE HAD an alma mater, we could possibly play at the end of the game even though the probability of anyone staying for it would be dim.

I doubt if anyone has any grounds for criticizing us for being unorganized. We show up in uniform, in force, for every home game. We play as a group, yet we are blamed for being unorganized.

The pep club, whose sole purpose is to generate pep at games and rallies, has a membership of around 35. At the last home game, about ten members were present. Yet the band is blamed for the lack of school spirit at the games.

Although our group is small, this is not our fault. According to school records, there are over 300 students here who can play band instruments. The reason they are not in band is that they just plain don't want to. After all, who wants to perform on a cold night in front of a silent audience only to be censured for not arousing pep and spirit?

Joe Boyd.

Dear Ed,

We are not totally disappointed in the results of the straw ballot, since Dan Evans did defeat Rosellini, Mrs. May was re-elected, and we had a fairer number of Republicans voting than we had expected.

I was personally shocked by the defeat of Walt Reese and the disproportionate vote in the Presidential race. However, we are still hopeful about the November 3 general election and the selections the experienced electorate will make.

At the risk of sounding like "sour grapes" I really don't feel that 378 voters out of 1,500 plus students and 70 some faculty is too good and I wish more students had voted so we might have enjoyed a better representation of views.

I feel also that student votes alone would give a closer race between candidates. We shall just have to wait until November 3 to see how well we students did.

Perhaps the fact that we put in a Republican governor and Democratic Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, and other minor officials is a clue that some of us need to examine more closely what grounds we were voting on — for Dan Evans pleaded for election of all his Republican officials if he was elected Governor in order to do a good job.

One of the first new clubs to be organized on campus this year is the Photography Club. The club has an active membership of about twelve. Ray Seitz, science instructor, is club advisor.

According to Mr. Seitz, the Photo Club's main function is to "coordinate photography for the college." The club members are divided into sections covering ASB, Collegiate, sports, and public relations.

Club members are responsible for taking and developing assigned pictures, and for filing and billing.

The club uses two darkrooms, furnished with developing and printing equipment; along with two professional press cameras with flashguns. The newest darkroom is located in the area behind the librarian's desk in the I building.

The main function of the Photography Club is to coordinate functions such as games, assemblies, socials, and guest speakers.

The members have been on an expense trip to the Olympics in Moscow.

The Photography Club has taken college pictures for the Tri-City Herald.

The club's budget is $400, used for equipment and supplies.

Future plans for the Photography Club include taking the club into a class activity credit, taking pictures of every faculty member at CBC, publishing a booklet, and seeking a ship fund. These plans, however, are indefinite.

According to several members, the club is doing well in covering the production method.

Because of the time most pictures take, they are done quickly to be done.

CBC Favors Democrats

A straw ballot was held, last Friday, sponsored by the Political Science clubs and the Associated Students of Columbia Basin College.

Of the 376 who voted, 263 favored the Lyndon Johnson-Hubert Humphrey democratic team, while 116 voted for the republican candidates, Barry Goldwater and William Miller.

The democratic incumbent for the United States Senate, Henry Jackson, and the republican incumbent in the house of Representatives, Catherine May, were elected.

IN THE STATE gubernatorial race, the battle was close. The republican candidate Daniel Evans won 189 to 176 over the incumbent Albert Rosellini.

Locally, the democratic team of Mike MacCormack for state senate, Doris Johnson and Dan Jolly for state representatives won over their rivals.

In a prepared statement, Stan Hovde, president of the CBC Young Democrats, said: "The election was a democratic landslide just as we had anticipated. President Johnson received more than twice as many votes as Goldwater."

LARRY KREUGER, president of the CBC Young Republicans, said: "Perhaps the fact that we put in a Republican governor and Democratic Lt. Governor, Secretary of State and other minor officials is a clue that some of us needed to examine more closely what grounds we were voting on."

CBC Wins In Swim Competition

The Columbia Basin College swim team made a good showing last Sunday at the Fairchild Swim Meet in Spokane.

Marcia Nelson, freshman, lead the CBC team, winning two gold medals and one bronze.

Miss Nelson won freestyle and backstroke swimming medals. She also placed third in breast stroke competition.

OTHER WINNERS were Margo Savage, free style relay.

In the diving competition, freshman Roger Pederson placed second in the three meter event.

Greg Reed finished second in the Medley Relay. Columbia Basin College is the first Community College to be represented in an age group meet.

THE TEAM will compete November 15 at Yakima and January 2 at Shadle Park in Spokane.

Volunteer To Lecture

Mrs. Virgie Robinson, a volunteer worker at the Whitman Center in East Pasco, will speak at the CBC Student Washington Education Association meeting.

The meeting will be held Monday evening at seven at the Fireside Lounge.

Mrs. Robinson represents a group of volunteers who tutor grade school students, and supervise their recreational activities free of charge at the center.

The purpose of Mrs. Robinson's lecture is to outline a plan for SWEA members and other interested students to aid the volunteers in their work.

This meeting is open to the public.

Kennewick High School is presenting "The Diary of Anne Frank." This is a sensitive and moving play that tells of the trials of a Jewish family in Holland during World War II.

Fred C. Dixon, language arts, who has been active in local theatre plays the leading role.

Analysts seldom know positively why voters elect certain candidates rather than others, but we would like to believe that we earned your support on the basis of sincerity, political integrity, understanding of facts on important issues, dedication to a positive program and teamwork.

If this is true—or partially so—for you, you may want to help us in your own way among your parents and friends during this last weekend of the campaign.

The outcome is by no means certain, but with your help now, we believe that next week YOU WILL be proud to say, "My legislators are: State Senator Mike McCormack and State Representatives—Doris Johnson and Dan Jolly.

You Will Be PROUD
